President's Remarks

I am a sports fan. So big events like the Olympics are a feast for me. On Sunday, February 11th, I got a special treat. Early in the morning our time, the six remaining competitors in the Ladies' Moguls battled for the ultimate glory. Leading the pack before the last run was Andi Naude from Penticton, BC. Andi has been and probably will be the only athlete I can claim to know personally taking part in the Olympics. As you can imagine, my pleasure of watching her coming down the hill turned into agony when she made a couple of mistakes and eventually fell to the ground. Out and over the dream of a medal!

Why do I know her? Andi's brother was Linda's first ever boyfriend! Admittedly, that was 12 years ago and we knew it wasn't for life. Still, our families met on several occasions while we lived in the Okanagan Valley. But here's the thing: all those years ago when Andi was eight years old she told me: "I'm going to the Olympics!". No, she didn't say "I'm dreaming of ...." That's how determined and focused she was even then.

While this story certainly is uplifting, there are many young people who make decisions that don't take them to the Olympics but near a prison cell. Through the PACT program, coaches of a different kind try to keep them out. We'll hear more about it today.

And for Andi, I hope she'll be back in four years!

Last Week: Ron Stokes Prince Edward Curling Club Project

The Curling Club began in 1913 and ice was rented in the Picton Arena during the 50s and 60s. The Club was incorporated in 1961. The current site was built in 1963.

The Club Board includes 9 volunteers and all staff are also volunteers, putting in about 2200 hours per year.

Membership includes 146 full season and 24 in the learn to curl program. There are also 240 members in the school program.

The building is used for a number of community groups during the off season including and an antique show, the Picton Fair and Fibre Fest.

The floor under the ice surface is in need of replacement. On April 9th, a new floor will be laid over the old concrete. The plan also includes new LED lighting and a new Kitchen facility. The renovations will help promote fitness and social activities across the County. The LED lighting and ice making machine will drastically reduce energy costs.
