3 minute talk

Lew Davie has been watching the weather statistics and river volumes very closely over the last few days. Lew gave us a comprehensive list of rainfall figures for a number of places around Mosgiel and in the upper reaches and catchment areas for the various watersheds. It appeared the significant figure in relation to the riverbanks near Lew's house, is the number of cumecs flowing down the Silverstream. It appears to have peaked around the 130-140 mark. When the Silverstream topped its banks last time, there was a flow of about 160 cumecs. There was heavy downpour on Saturday morning and the river level was about 150mm from the top of the bank early Sat morning, but thankfully the rain eased and the river level fell relatively quickly during the day.

From the chair

Denis reminded us of the home hosting, and advised that Hosts will be contacted this coming week, whereas attendees will be told on the day of which members house they will be going to

Guest Speaker

Collin Brown introduced PJ Bardsley, a business management consultant. PJ is a local girl and lives in Wardronville / Green Island. While a number of her clients ask about how to fire employees, PJ described some of the more interesting challenges and situations she came across in her role as an advisor to business managers. She also has a role in teaching business management, and believes her varied experience brings a different aspect to her teaching. Students enjoy hearing some of the unusual stories from her work life which also make the lectures more memorable.

Thanks were given by John Brieseman

Thought for the week

Peter Forman: You draw nothing out of the Bank of Life except what you put into it.
