Tune in to hear about Juneau symphony's plans

The Juneau Symphony hasn't let COVID slow it down. There have been weekly broadcasts on KTOO of past performances and special features; 54 of them and counting! This is in addition to producing a virtual season with performances around town. We will hear plans for the upcoming season, including classes, as well as an update on the music director search from the speakers profiled here:

Executive Director Charlotte Truitt has called Juneau home for 28 years. She and her husband have raised four daughters and have been an active part of the Juneau arts community since 1993. She earned her BA in Music from Oral Roberts University in 1989 and has worked in church music, musical theater, private voice instruction, and sung with our own Juneau Symphony Chorus.

Board President Beth Pendleton retired as Alaska Regional Forester in 2018 following a 33-year career with the U.S. Forest Service and natural resources sector. She is a graduate of Harvard's Senior Executive Fellows Program and American University's Key Leadership program. She brings management and communications expertise to the Board of Directors, as well as a recognition that the arts are central to a community's health and vitality.

Seeking volunteers for Rotary positions

As our new president steps up, several positions critical to Rotary operations are opening up. Consider taking on one of these positions:

- Admin Chair – overseeing the chairs of various sub-committees.
- Program Chair – coordinate weekly speakers
- Community Service Chair – point of contact on community service projects
- Vice-President – support the President
- Secretary – maintain club records

Job descriptions are available upon request and more information will be coming soon.
